Abstract

A method, computer program, and database system are disclosed for processing a database query that includes one or more expressions. The method includes resolving columns in one or more of the expressions. Expression optimization is performed on one or more of the expressions. Afterward, further query optimization is performed.

5